

Neek's Artist Analysis

Sylvan Quady

Neek's Audience Loyalty

3.2% ("Stickiness")

- Total followers/monthly listeners
- About 3% indicates passive growth
- Higher number of playlist saves, likely lower fan retention
 - Optional suggestion: lean into being a smaller artist on artist profile on Spotify:
 - Add a personal message from Neek appreciating fans and/or telling them to hit the follow button to stay up to date on his music (proven to drive listener retention compared to informative bio)

	Neek	redveil	Veeze
Total followers	2952	278,891	315,297
Monthly Listeners	91,905	804,107	2,547,051
"Stickiness" %	3.21%	34.68%	12.38%

Key Comparisons

I've included these artists as good Benchmark Peers for Neek. "Minute Maid" shares the same jazzy rap fusion sonic profile as redveil's music. "Streets Locked" shares the same Chicago/Detroit quasi-drill rap profile as some of Veeze's biggest hits. I want to examine their geographic listener data to help identify potential expansion opportunities.

Market Expansion Strategy

The Hub-and-Spoke Method

Neek's current listener data shows a triangle between Houston, Chicago, and LA. The current 'Hubs' are cities with a lot of Neek listeners such as Houston, LA, and Chicago. The 'spokes' cities are smaller listener hot zones with big potential based on the current Hub cities, such as Dallas, Detroit, and anywhere in the Bay Area. To scale this, I recommend an Inward-Outward Expansion:

1. Inward: Invest in 'Hub' cities like Houston by aiming for higher listener retention. Double down on 'Spoke' cities like Dallas, via geo-targeted social content.
 - a. The biggest untapped market after solidifying fans in Houston is Chicago/Detroit.
 - b. Already home to some Neek listeners, and a hotspot for fans of redveil and Veeze, targeting these listeners with content should drive expansion.
2. Outward: Strategic alignment with Detroit-based curators.
 - a. The sonic similarity to certain artists dominating the areas of Chicago and Detroit makes it Neek's best opportunity for expansion and possibly collaboration.
 - b. Suggestion: find an artist to collaborate with to 'cross-pollinate' markets and listeners.

Growth Opportunities Summary

Audience

- Major concentration in LA, Houston, and Chicago, and a lot of room to grow
- Solidify and convert Hub listeners
- Strategically advertise to listeners in spokes cities (Dallas, Detroit, etc.)
- Remain active on Spotify & other streaming services/socials

Sonic Similarities

- For “Minute Made” and “Streets Locked” specifically, the similarity to redveil and Veeze’s hit songs could open a door for strategic promotion in the Detroit rap or chill rap ecosystems
- They share similar listener locations, places in which Neek already has some traction

The Crossover

- Houston and/or LA (wherever Neek is) should be the focus of advertising
- Diversifying advertising locations and targeting listeners of redveil and Veeze with the song that matches their sound
- Use their listener location data to inform the location of targeted advertising

What's Next?

1. Optional bet recommended: Spotify (and other services) bio refresh. Include a personable “Follow” call to action as well as a message to fans rather than a description
 - a. Could help to boost “Stickiness” percentage
2. Digital Expansion: run experimental ads (song clip with video) for $5/10 per day on Instagram/Tik Tok
 - a. “Streets Locked” - target listeners of Veeze (if possible) in Chicago/Detroit
 - b. “Minute Made” - target listeners of redveil in LA and Chicago
 - i. Track any changes to streaming numbers and/or following
3. Cross-pollinate: look out for artists to collaborate with who might reciprocally benefit from a feature on a song or another type of collab
 - a. Suggestions: Veeze/redveil or Babyface Ray if possible, but other artists that are still bigger include:
 - i. MAVI, MIKE, Saba, Icewear Vezzo
4. Target a diverse range of playlists, ranging from “Mellow Bars” to “Houston Rap”
